Design & Engineering Services

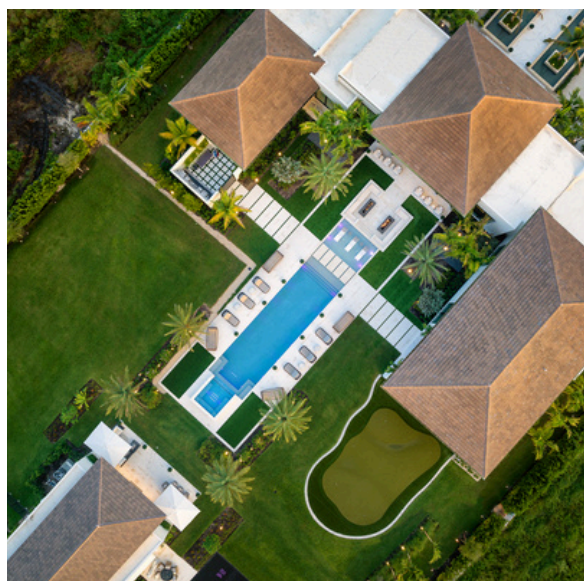

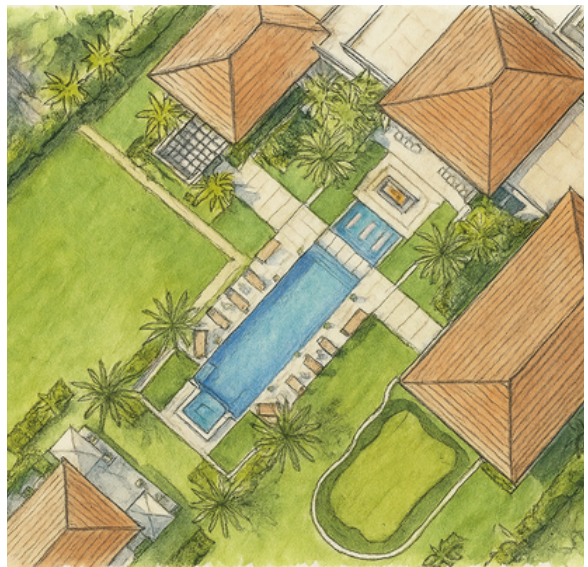

Integrated Design & Engineering

At CPS Outdoors, every great outdoor space begins with thoughtful design and precise engineering. Our integrated design-build approach unites creativity, technical expertise, and material selection under one coordinated team. This ensures that every project is beautiful, buildable, and engineered to perform for years to come.

Unlike firms that offer only design or only engineering, CPS manages the entire process—from concept through installation. This seamless approach reduces costs, minimizes delays, and eliminates the disconnects that often occur when multiple firms handle different parts of a project.

A Smarter Way To Build

CPS Outdoors provides both concept design for clients who begin without existing plans and engineering construction documents for architect-led projects. This dual capability makes us unique in the industry. Whether a client arrives with a blank slate or a complete architectural plan set, our team delivers the accurate technical solutions and refined design decisions required to execute an exceptional outdoor living environment.

A Clear Guided Journey

Our design process is structured to give clients clarity and confidence at every step. Whether starting with a blank canvas or joining an architect-led project, CPS provides the level of support each project requires.

Concept & Layout

We begin by understanding the client's goals, lifestyle, and property. From there, we create tailored layout options, concept plans, and visual renderings that help clients picture their future outdoor space.

Design Development

Once a concept is selected, we refine the details—pool configuration, hardscape layout, outdoor kitchens, lighting ideas, and material direction. This stage establishes the overall design identity.

Construction Documents

Our engineering team produces the technical drawings, plans, and specifications needed for permitting and construction. These documents ensure accuracy, safety, and a smooth build from start to finish.

Finishes & Selections

Finally, we guide clients through choosing the finishes, fixtures, equipment, and furnishings that complete the vision. All selections are coordinated so the final space feels cohesive and intentional.

Clients may engage CPS for the entire process or for specific services—design only, engineering only, or finishes only. Our team integrates easily into any project scope, supporting homeowners, architects, and builders alike.

Why Our Process Delivers Better Results

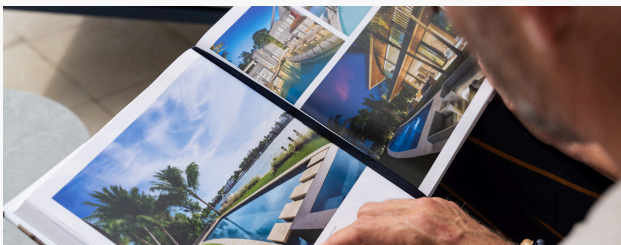

The Benefits of an Integrated Design Process

Our unified approach to design and engineering gives clients a smoother, more efficient experience from start to finish. With CPS Outdoors, every decision—creative or technical—is coordinated under one team working toward a single vision. This eliminates miscommunication, reduces delays, and ensures a seamless transition from concept to construction.

Design That Reduces Costs & Surprises

By addressing constructability, material compatibility, and long-term performance early, we help clients avoid redesigns and unexpected issues once construction begins. The result is more accurate budgeting, faster permitting, and projects that stay on track.

Clarity Through Visuals & Communication

Our unified approach to design and engineering gives clients a smoother, more efficient experience from start to finish. With CPS Outdoors, every decision—creative or technical—is coordinated under one team working toward a single vision. This eliminates miscommunication, reduces delays, and ensures a seamless transition from concept to construction.

A Cohesive Result, Built to Last

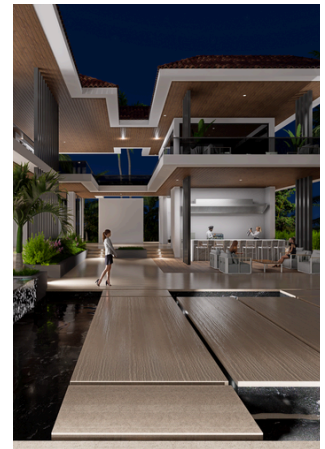

Because the same team designs, engineers, and oversees the project, the final outdoor space aligns perfectly with the original vision and functions as beautifully as it looks. From technical performance to aesthetic detail, CPS ensures every element works together as one complete environment.

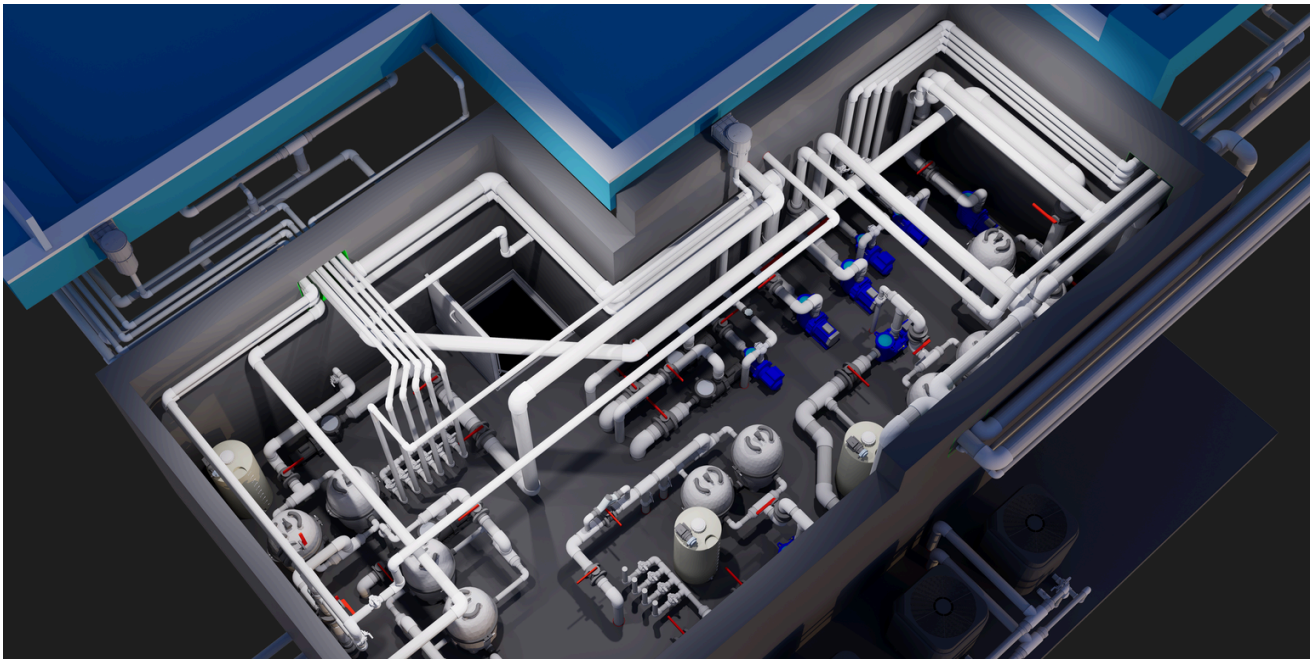

Renderings & Visualization

Bring Your Design To Life

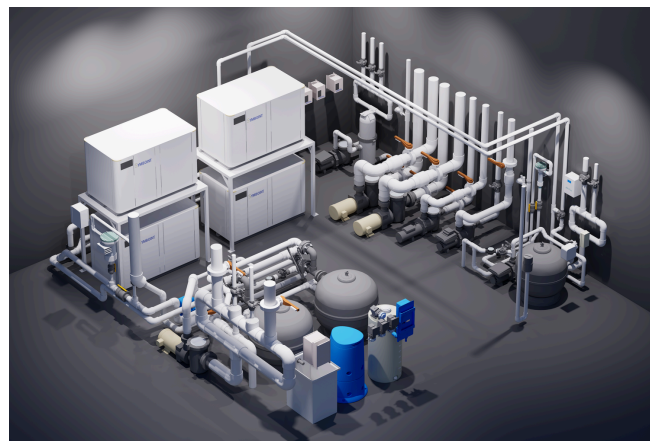

We provide complete 3D renderings of your project before construction begins. This allows you to see your space in stunning detail, explore design options, and feel confident that the final build will be everything you envisioned. From material choices to lighting ambiance, our renderings help you make decisions with clarity.

3D Design, CAD & Revit Capabilities

CPS utilizes advanced digital design tools as a core part of our design and engineering process, allowing us to manage complexity with precision and eliminate ambiguity long before construction begins. Through comprehensive 3D CAD modeling, Revit-based documentation, detailed technical drawings, and high-fidelity visual studies, we create a fully coordinated digital environment where architecture, engineering, and constructability are aligned. This approach enables early clash detection, validates complex assemblies, and ensures seamless coordination across disciplines—resulting in clearer decision-making, reduced risk, and execution-ready documentation.

Stainless Steel Pool Construction

CPS Outdoors is proud to offer state-of-the-art stainless steel pool construction, combining unparalleled durability, precision, and modern aesthetics. Our stainless steel pools offer an alternative to traditional pool materials, providing versatility, convenience, and long-lasting quality.

Stainless steel pools are lightweight, corrosion-resistant, and watertight, making them an ideal solution for elevated spaces, rooftops, or areas requiring high structural integrity. Each pool is custom-designed to meet your specific needs, offering sleek finishes, integrated tile options, and unmatched craftsmanship. Waldorf Astoria Miami

Our design-build approach ensures every project is fully integrated—from concept and engineering to construction and furnishing—so you can trust one partner to bring your vision to life.

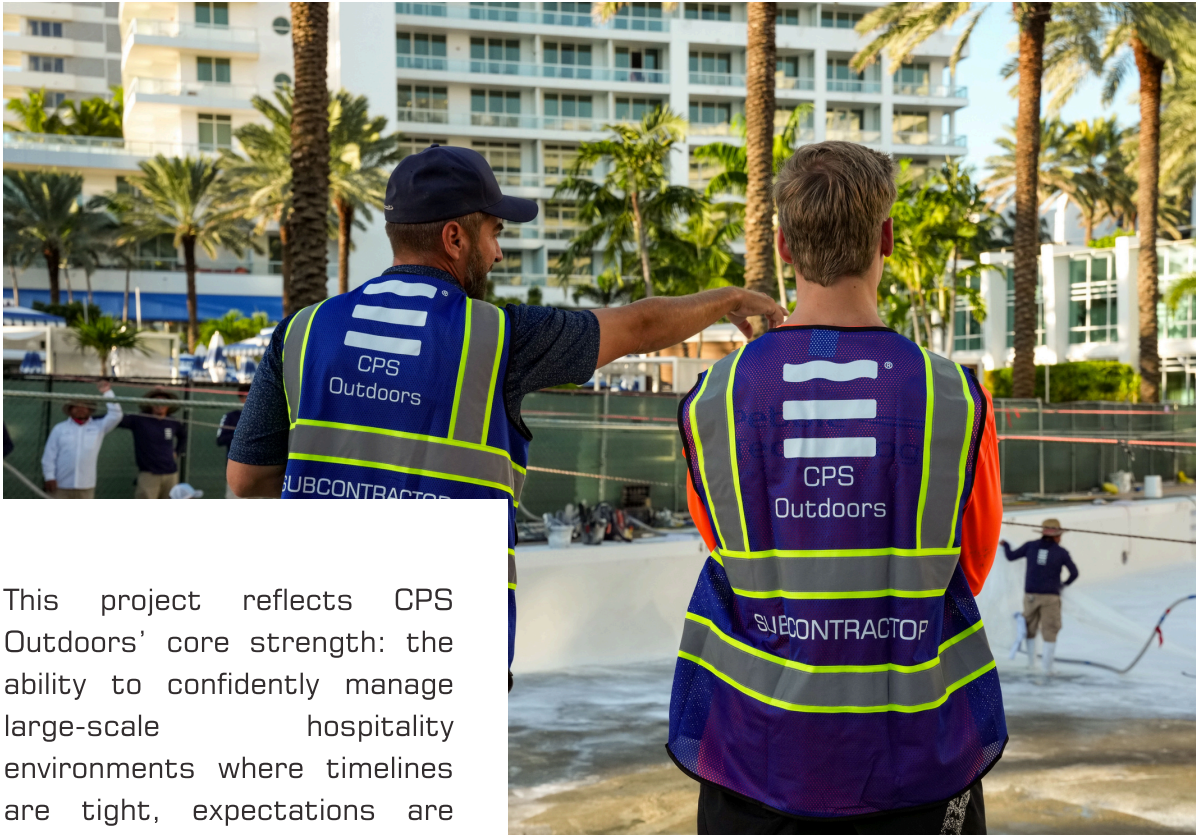

Fountainbleau Resort Hotel

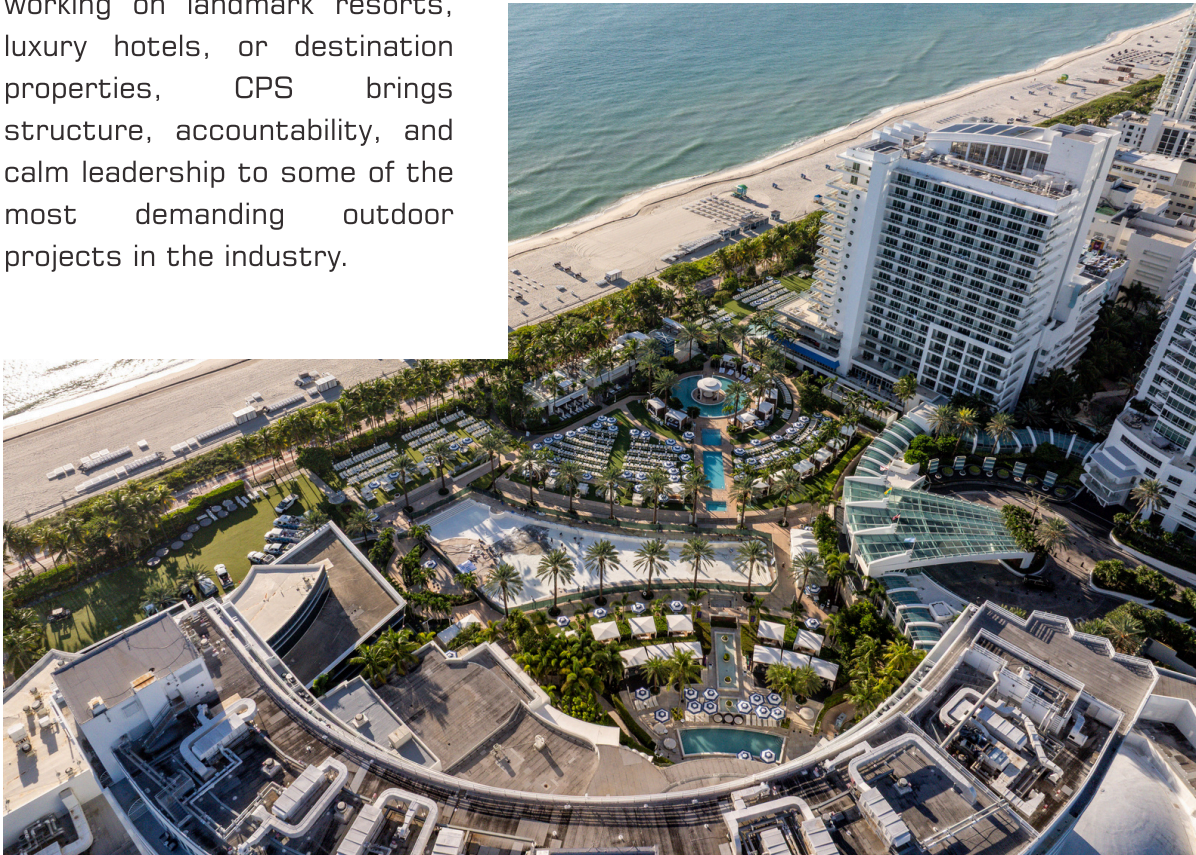

CPS Outdoors was selected to deliver complex exterior refinishing at Fontainebleau Miami Beach, one of the most iconic hospitality properties in the world. Projects of this scale demand far more than execution—they require precision planning, seamless coordination, and the ability to operate within live, high-profile environments without disruption.

From logistics and scheduling to multi-trade coordination and design fidelity, CPS managed the project with the rigor expected of a global hospitality brand. Our team worked in lockstep with ownership, consultants, and on-site operations to ensure every detail aligned with the property's standards for performance, durability, and guest experience.

This project reflects CPS Outdoors' core strength: the ability to confidently manage large-scale hospitality environments where timelines are tight, expectations are uncompromising, and execution must be flawless. Whether working on landmark resorts, luxury hotels, or destination properties, CPS brings structure, accountability, and calm leadership to some of the most demanding outdoor projects in the industry.

Extraordinary Engineering

commercial projects demand more than craftsmanship — they require precision engineering, complex logistics, and absolute trust. This stainless-steel pool installation is a perfect example. Fabricated in two massive sections, the structure had to be lifted by crane to the top of a luxury high-rise, maneuvered into place with only inches to spare, and then seamlessly assembled on the rooftop. From coordinating specialized fabricators to managing the rigging, craning, and exact on-site alignment, every step required meticulous planning and flawless execution.

For CPS Outdoors, these challenges are not obstacles — they are opportunities to demonstrate the level of expertise that defines our commercial work. Our team excels in complex environments where precision, safety, and coordination are critical. Whether it's a multi-story lift, a tight urban job site, or a highly technical design requirement, we deliver solutions with the same care and accuracy expected by world-class developers and architects. This project stands as a testament to what CPS Outdoors does best: bringing ambitious visions to life through engineering excellence and uncompromising attention to detail.
